10 - Which parts of this course were most valuable to your overall learning experience?

Response Rate 7/32 (21.88%)

- I appreciated how the professor was respectful of Latin America in the conversations we had as a group and never dehumanized the people from these countries while having deep and difficult conversations about crime. I valued the passion from the professor and caring about the ideas her students had to offer- I felt seen.
- I found the most valuable part of the course was learning of the ways in solving such crimes in Latin America.
- helping learn about things i want for my career
- Lectures
- I think the required 4 essays on the readings for 4 classes was definitely helped a lot. It is easy with all these classes to get behind with the readings or not do them at all. This helped us to make sure we did them and understood the concept with respect to the content being learned in class which I liked a lot.
- Professor was very clear and knew what she was talking about. Always ready for questions and I liked that she gave enough time for us to write notes while doing her slides
- The debate lead people to express their opinions on a touchy subject, which I enjoyed because its something I haven't experienced in any other class and let people express openly how they felt on things.

11 - Which parts of this course would you suggest changing?

Response Rate 7/32 (21.88%)

- n/a
- Group Project/Debate was a huge problem within group contribution and group assessment. Many members had to carry the project while others couldn't care less of the project.
- focus on more subjects over others

12 - What specific advice would you give to improve this course?

13 - Which parts of this course were most valuable to your overall learning experience?

Response Rate 7/32 (21.88%)

- I valued how I gained an understanding of the world outside the U.S., especially on how crime manifests because of the intersectionalities between crime and systemic injustices (poverty, impacts of colonization, etc.). It is important to discuss the systemic injustices that relate to why crime persists in LATAM & the Caribbean.
- I found the most valuable part of this course was learning of the methods in solving crimes in Latin America and how each Latin American countries function differently.
- the group conversations

14 - What did you like and dislike about the debate assignment?

Response Rate 8/32 (25%)

- It is difficult to ensure 100% contribution of all members and possibly having something each member has to submit via Blackboard can demonstrate that each student has participated.
- I think more guidance in the format and instructions would have been helpful.
- I disliked the disproportionate amount of work given to its group members. Group assignments always will have some people who don't participate or do very little in the assignment and take credit for other people's work. I didn't like a single aspect of the debate.
- I liked the debate, the instructions were a bit confusing until i was able to hear them in person than it was very interesting
- The structure of the argument
- The only thing was it would've been a lot more fun if we got to respond right away to the group we were debating against directly. But we couldn't because of the class constraints which is understandable just a though!
- I liked it because it was fun, but I wish there was more dialogue
- I wish we had more time to talk out some of our points, however I understand if that were the case the class would be 3 hours long.

15 - As the course progressed, I could see how each of the topics fit into a whole.
